

James R. Lilley

mailto:jlilley@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Lilley,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Ben J. Wattenberg

mailto:Bwattenberg@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Wattenberg,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Karl Zinsmeister

mailto:kz@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Zinsmeister,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Jeane J. Kirkpatrick

mailto:jkirkpatrick@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Ms. Kirkpatrick,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Frederick M. Hess

mailto:RHess@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Hess,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Robert A. Goldwin

mailto:rgoldwin@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Goldwin,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Nicholas Eberstadt

mailto:eberstadt@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Eberstadt,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Lynne V. Cheney

mailto:lcheney@aei.org

American Enterprise Institute

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Ms. Cheney,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

William P. Fuller

mailto:wfuller@asiafound.org

President

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Fuller,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Allen C. Choate

mailto:choate@asiafound.org.hk

Director of Program Development
The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Choate,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Gordon Hein

mailto:ghein@asiafound.org

Vice President, Programs
The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Hein,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Gavin Tritt

mailto:gtritt@asiafound.org
Director, Books for Asia
The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Tritt,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>
mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349
H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Nancy Yuan

mailto:nyuan@asiafound-dc.org

Vice President

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Ms. Yuan,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Ye Zhang

mailto:beijing@asiafound.org.cn

Country Director

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Ye,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Chun S. Moon

mailto:csmoon@tafko.or.kr

Program Officer

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Moon,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Scott Snyder

mailto:info@tafko.or.kr

Representative

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Snyder,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Greg Alling

mailto:

Assistant Representative
The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Alling,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Andy Andrews
mailto:andy@pk.asiafound.org
Representative
The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Andrews,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349
H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

Richard H. Fuller

mailto:dfuller@asiafound.org

Senior Director

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Fuller,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Meloney C. Lindberg

mailto: mlindberg@asiafound.org.ph

Assistant Representative

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Ms. Lindberg,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto: hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

Barnett F. Baron

mailto:bbaron@asiafound.org

Executive Vice President
The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Baron,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

John Brandon

mailto: jbrandon@asiafound-dc.org

Assistant Director

The Asia Foundation

Hong Kong, 03/09/20

HKLNA-Project -- The beginning of a solution

Dear Mr. Brandon,

Twelve years on the ground in East Asia has taught me that the world is not yet ready for a universally shared common language. In the simplest of terms there are too many people learning English to provide adequate training to non-native speakers and insufficient real demand to help them sustain what they have learned after they have been trained. Moreover, there are too few people learning the languages of non-English speaking peoples to provide a sufficiently strong foundation for good cross-cultural communication and understanding. As a result the overall quality of the English language has suffered, East Asian languages have been neglected, and understanding between peoples of East Asia and the West has been impaired. The obvious solution to this problem is to remove the artificial demand for English language created by East Asian governments and the language's global proponents. Unfortunately, those who are in the best position to remove this excess demand and consequent oversupply of poor quality English, are the least inclined to do so.

In order to start the ball rolling I have created the Hong Kong Language Needs Assessment Project.

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/index.html>

Although dedicated almost entirely to Hong Kong, the project has important implications for the rest of East Asia, where I hope someday to move it forward under a different name. The purpose of the project is to assess the real use and need of the English language in Hong Kong and eventually East Asian societies and thereby provide policy makers and individual citizens with the information they require to make proper choices with regard to English language training and learning. The first important stage of this project is research, and it is to this end that the following proposal was developed and money, or alternatively employment, is now being sought

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/current/hklna/documents/proposals/030828-1.pdf>

Please consider the project and research proposal carefully and think about ways that you, your organization, or others whom you know, might best contribute to the

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto: hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan

Shatin • New Territories

Hong Kong • China 04

HKLNA-Project's ultimate success.

I am looking forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,

橋 守

R. A. Stegemann
HKLNA-Project Director

East Asian Research and Translation in Hong Kong

<http://homepage.mac.com/moogoonghwa/earth/>

mailto:hsmr@pacific.net.hk • tel/fax: 852 2630 0349

H2-30 Sunshine City • No. 18 On Luk Street • Ma On Shan
Shatin • New Territories
Hong Kong • China 04